

O-O-O

- o-o-o, transforms in real time using singing voices :
- measures of ozone from the GOME satellite spinning around earth.
 - measures of ozone produced by city pollution in the exhibition center.

- o-o-o can be shown in 2 different versions :

O-O-O live performance
11th april 2008

at LE FRUC Montpellier

Stéphan Barron uses technologies of telecommunications in a reflection about geography and distance.

Main projects : Thaon/New York - 1987 (Transmission by satellite), Orient Express - 1987 (Computer Transmission between Paris and Budapest), Lines (Ars Electronica 1989), The blue of the sky (1994), com-post (2000), corpo@corpo (Venezia Biennale, 2005), wyfy (Biennale Lyon, 2007), contact (FRUC, 2008).

This installation is a metaphore of an «Ozone Pomp» between the ozone from the pollution and the natural ozone, between the 2 hemispheres, between man and nature.

This music is elaborated not by one person, but by human activity on a planetary scale (pollution of the ozone) and by interaction with the sun.

o-o-o expresses in a artistic and poetic manner, the major ecological problem of the hole in the ozone layer.

A paradox is apparent in the problem of the ozone : produced in too large quantities by cars in the city, there is not enough in the stratosphere, thus provoking an alarming increase in Australia of skin cancer, becoming a tangible social phenomenon.

Although it is far away from us, australian children learn at school to protect themselves from the sun.

Planetary interdependence :

It becomes more and more apparent that our destinies and gestes are linked with those of all humans, even the most far removed.

A solidarity, a planetary consciousness slowly elaborates itself.

The beauty, the poetry of distance is essential. It allows us to redefine the dimensions of our consciousness.

o-o-o expresses this mix of uneasiness and astonishment before the interdependence of terrestrial phenomena.

Immateriality, complexity

The installation also expresses the immateriality and complexity of phenomena to which contemporary man is confronted. The ozone and the UV rays are factors of complex phenomena where human physiology interacts with economic development.

Nevertheless these factors are impalpable, immaterial, and related to information (and misinformation).

Ubiquity, sensuality of distance :

The telecommunications are an important element of the project because they enable the expression of geographical interdependence.

The poetry of ubiquity, the sensuality of distance.

Beauty of a distant presence : my conscious is shared between here and there, between another and myself. I participate from afar.

Sensuality of the distance : the loss from view, reorganize our perception, exacerbate our auditive sensuality.

This loss from view is the source of the imaginary.

Music throws our bodies which is activated from afar by untouchable factors, but still resulting in a complex interaction between man and the world.
